

Work Readiness

Introduction

This work readiness programme, has been designed in response to our recognition that we are uniquely positioned to not only talk from hard won experience about the challenges that face almost every young person entering the working world, but more importantly we have spent all of our professional lives focusing on the singular problem of how best to develop skills and knowledge in vibrant and ambitious young people.

The work readiness programme aims to give every person who attends the programme a good START in the working world by showing them what is really expected by a potential employer, what is actually meant by the over used term “Work-Life Balance” and how collaboration with others is the best possible approach to managing an uncertain world, diverse and information heavy world.
